

aren't you glad that this piece of beauty is here to make your cubicle experience just that much more profound well even if you are not we sure are the public toilet is a great communal center a meeting place of deeply personal experience lets respect that do you know elvis do you accept him into your heart do you really believe and understand just what he did for you visit a local chapter of the presbyterian church to find out more

elvis

the king is alive

He died for you,
Died for us all.
But he lives on in the neon
His spirit resides in the glitter
He is your burger.
Elvis died on the loo.
He died for you.

2003

there is not that much more to say now weve been through the reasons and the context and now all thats really left is to bid you a nice happy inside and to wish you a nice day come back soon

yip, trite corporate poetry does not make anything a work of art but it has something of that essence of cheese that makes elvis out of everything the man achieved some kind of pop nirvana that andy could only dream of yeah the king is alive
